

About

Musica Canis Avem

Musica Canis Avem is part of Dogbird Publishing, LLC of Annapolis, Maryland. Founded in 2017, its mission is to create, publish, and promote new music.

Founder and managing partner William Chandler studied music theory and composition with composer and symphony director David Van Vactor. He studied classical guitar with Larry Long, who founded the Knoxville/Oak Ridge Classical Guitar Society, and renowned American guitarist Matt Palmer. Chandler is also an award-winning energy and climate scientist and entrepreneur and has led carbon emissions control efforts in China, Russia, and central Europe. He is the author or co-author of nearly a dozen books.

Musica Canis Avem honors the memory of physicist, environmentalist, and Presidential Science Advisor John H. Gibbons with a series of prizes and commissions for original guitar compositions. We are very grateful for the cooperation in this effort of Asgerdur Sigurdardottir, President of the Baltimore Classical Guitar Society.

We want to thank the following musicians and colleagues whose contributions have made Musica Canis Avem and its work possible: Holly Gwin, attorney and multi-instrumentalist; William Kenlon, composer and educator; Matt Palmer, guitarist and educator; Asgerdur Sigurdardottir, President of the Baltimore Classical Guitar Society; Kate Richardson, editor; Ann Sarber, graphic designer at Sir Speedy of Annapolis; Charlie McKee, Maryland artist; and Stephen Berry, educator and resident agent for Musica Canis Avem.

For more information, please contact us via the email form provided in the "Contact" page menu.

We welcome you to explore our catalogue and listen to our music--for free. Just click on the image below.

